

Emergency Health Provider Registry – Welcomes New Registrants

To all health science professional health authority employees who provide direct care to patients/residents/clients:

The Emergency Health Provider Registry (EHPR) supports the registration and deployment of health providers willing to provide vital health services during a local, regional or provincial emergency.

Nurses, allied health professionals, and physicians can join the registry at anytime by calling HealthLink BC (8-1-1). Registrants are asked to provide basic information about their education, qualifications, and availability. All information provided is securely managed and protected by HealthLink BC in accordance with the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act.

During an emergency, the registry will periodically email registrants regarding their availability. Registrants pre-selected for a deployment assignment will be contacted by their Staffing Office or Medical Affairs department, and supervisor approval will be required.

For more information on the EHPR, please refer to the attached document provided by the Ministry of Health.

Thank you for your support.
